ATTACK ON CAPTAIN REED

Salvor Jones of Lloyds' Leaves for the East—La Tour D'Auvergne Arrived Down En Route to Europe—Tiverton Clears.

The unhappy event that put the steamer Lurline on the bottom of the river on Wednesday morning had its funny elements as well as its serious phases: A certain man from Chinook was on board accompanied by his wife, he had, also, a fine setter bitch and a basket full of just as fine pups. When the smash occurred this Chinookian sprang from his berth, rushed on deck, grabbed his basket of puppies, called his dog and made a straight shoot for the decks of the steamer Cascades, before he even thought of his wife, who, with the aid of some of the Lurline's officers, reached the other steamer in safety, and proceeded to tell her husband just what she thought of him. Out of respect to the lady, the name of the dog fancier is withheld. Another well known mill man who does business not a thousand miles from Astoria, was on board and occupied stateroom No. 17; and on his departure from the sinking boat, yelled back to Purser Moran that he "had left a collar button in No. 17, for God's sake try and get it." Agent Charley Fuller, who happened to hear the despairing cry of the refugee and thinking that it was, perhaps, a diamond stud of beauty and value, made his way to No. 17, and groped for half an hour for the missing gem, and when he found it, it proved to be a cheap, snap-back affair, sold on any market on earth for 40 cents a gross. Charley mailed it to the bereaved owner yesterday. The steamer Annie Cummings was sent down to the Lurline yesterday, with two big barges and plenty of wrecking gear, and the work of taking away her fixtures and gear was begun at once. As soon as she is lightened up sufficiently, the real work of raising her will be begun and there is no doubt felt about her restoration to service as good as new. The steamer Undine is to take her place in the meantime and is working on her schedule now.

There is universal disgust in this city for the silly and unwarranted attack in the Portland Evening Telegram on Wednesday last, as against Captain John C. Reed of the bar tug Wallula, for his alleged disregard of the presence of the long overdue British bark Iverna on that day. The screed was written either by an egregious ass of a reporter or by a man deliberately and harshly disposed toward Captain Reed; and it is just as well for his bodily comfort that the subject of his contemptible article does not know of his identity. The fact of the business is, Captain Reed was in tow of the four masted schooner A. F. Coats, headed for the bar, when the Iverna hove in sight and he turned his tow over to the Tatoosh just inside the bar and rushed back to sea to pick up the Iverna, reaching her within an hour after she took on her pilot. He then towed her for five and one-half hours to her anchorage in the lower bay, and had her on the hither side of the barrier before the nasty, trumped-up story in the Telegram was before the public in Portland. Captain Reed is known all over this coast as one of the most expert bar captains, a man who never neglects a duty, and was never known to do a shabby nor a cowardly piece of sea work in his life. He is not that kind of a man; and the Telegram has but added to its long list of blunders in giving marine news from this port, when it permitted such a publication. In its desire to criticize the tug service, it overshot the mark and did a good man an ugly turn.

Parry Jones, salvor for Lloyds', who has been here looking into the conditions surrounding the wreck of the bark Peter Iredale, left yesterday for Seattle, where he will go directly to his home and headquarters at Cleveland, Ohio, in consequence of the recent numerous wrecks reported in his especial district, the Great Lakes.

The French bark La Tour D'Auvergne arrived down from Portland yesterday morning on the hawsers of the Harvest Queen and went to the lower harbor. She is laden with grain for Falmouth.

The steamer Tiverton cleared from this port and the Tongue Point mill yesterday for San Francisco, with 500,000 feet of Oregon lumber.

The steamship Aztec and the steamship Geo. W. Elder did not get away from the lower harbor until the early flood yesterday.

The government tug Sotoyomo has left this port for the Bremerton navy yard. She was here for a week.

The little schooner Abbie went to sea yesterday morning with her cargo of lumber for San Francisco.

The steamer Redondo, lumber laden for San Francisco, went seaward over the bar yesterday morning.

A Year of Blood.

The year 1903 will long be remembered in the home of F. N. Tackett, of Alliance, Ky., as a year of blood; which flowed so copiously from Mr. Tackett's lungs that death seemed very near. He writes: "Severe bleeding from the lungs and a frightful cough had brought me at death's door, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, with the astonishing result that after taking four bottles I was completely restored and as time has proven, permanently cured." Guaranteed for Sore Lungs, Coughs and Colds, at Chas. Rogers' drug store. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

On a Flying Visit—State Senator N. Wheelon, of Wasco, was in the city yesterday, on a matter of business; and incidentally he looked up his old colleague, Senator Jay Tuttle and talked over old times at Salem. He also ran foul of Senator W. T. Schofield with whom he is to be officially associated this winter, and between these two, his day in Astoria was quite too short.

HUGHES GIVES DINNER.

Seven Hundred Republicans Attend Banquet Given by Gov. Hughes.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—More than seven hundred Republicans attended the dinner and banquet given to Charles E. Hughes by the Republican Club of New York at the Waldorf-Astoria tonight. State Republican Chairman Woodruff officiated as toastmaster. Governor Higgins could not be present. Platt and Depew, United States senators, were also absent. Letters of regret from Secretaries Root and Taft were read. Mr. Woodruff said in part: "We are saved from the defeat of our entire state ticket by ebullitions of Hearst and the most fortunate and opportune evolution of Hughes. We must not fail to give a considerable share of the credit for Mr. Hughes' election to the unselfish efforts of those patriotic Democrats who saw in Hearst's election a menace to the prosperity we are now enjoying and to the stability of our form of government."

Former Governor Black warned the Republican party not to become too apathetic.

MR. Hughes said in part: "Optimist and pessimist, the timid and courageous, sanguine and bilious, have made me the repository of their hopes and fears, their gloomy forebodings and their triumphant exultations. Out of it all I spell opportunity, responsibility and God-speed. We may not be able to completely agree as to the cause of the existing uneasiness and discontent, but we must agree to our immediate duty. We should meet condition, so far as they lie within our province, squarely, candidly and with readiness to serve the public. If there are those who are alarmed at discontent and who are dissatisfied with their lot, they will view with ill-concealed impatience and disgust all efforts at improvement. I am not one of them."

The Ladies' Guild of Holy Innocents will have a sale of fancy articles in the basement of the chapel on the 24th of November, Saturday, afternoon and evening.
